

Failford Road to Tritton Road

Upgrading the Pacific Highway

REVIEW OF ENVIRONMENTAL FACTORS (INCORPORATING REFINEMENTS TO THE CONCEPT DESIGN)
MAY 2008

The upgrading of the Pacific Highway between Failford Road and Tritton Road is a key step in progressing the completion of the upgrade of the Pacific Highway.

The 3.5 kilometre upgrade would raise the standard of this section to be consistent with adjoining sections of the highway. A new southbound carriageway would be constructed parallel and to the east of the existing southbound carriageway.

Following the display of the concept design in February 2006, a number of community submissions were received and have been considered. The design has been refined and a review of environmental factors has been prepared and is now on display for community comment.

Refined design

Community feedback has resulted in the design of the Failford Road interchange being refined. An angled overbridge is now proposed as it allows the southbound exit ramp to connect to Failford Road via a roundabout (see refined Failford Road interchange map).

Staffed display

Project staff will be available to discuss the project at the Nabit Community Technology Centre, 35 Nabit Street, Nabit on Wednesday 4 June 2008, 2.30pm - 7pm.

What happens next?
