Environmental policy

RESPECTING OUR ENVIRONMENT

At Golding, we seek to work in ways that are consistent with, and supportive of, environmentally sustainable development. We recognise that we are guests in the communities in which we work and strive to develop and maintain strong community relationships that enhance the reputation of Golding.

Golding leaders are required to implement work practices designed to minimise environmental harm and adverse community impacts. We deliver safe and environmentally efficient work practices at each of our sites, reducing waste and conserving resources.

Golding employees are required to be respectful of the environment and communities in which we work and disciplined in the application of sustainable practices.

If environmental incidents or community issues do arise, we investigate them thoroughly. We commit identified improvements to action and share our learning so incidents are not repeated.

At Golding, we demonstrate respect for the environment and communities in which we operate.
